

PUBLICATION GRANTS – GRANTS FOR OPEN ACCESS PUBLICATIONS GUIDELINES & INSTRUCTIONS

AFI covers publication costs in open access journals for young scientists. Free access to the latest research results is a major concern for AFI. Publications on the topic of Alzheimer's disease or Alzheimer's disease related dementias are supported with a grant of up to € 1,000. As a fundraising organisation, AFI aims to facilitate open access publications and expects that other funding opportunities have been exhausted prior to application. Any difference can be requested from AFI.

What are the conditions to be granted a subsidy?

- The article has significant relevance to research on Alzheimer's disease or other rare dementias. From 2025, we will only fund original research articles and not reviews.
- The selected journal publishes all articles immediately after publication Open Access (True Open Access journal). Open Access options for individual articles in journals requiring subscription cannot be funded.
- The applicant is a first author or corresponding author and employed at a university or other public institution in Germany.
- The applicant is a PhD student or post-doc without leading position.
- The journal fulfils the scientific quality criteria applicable to the respective subject and is peer-reviewed. As a rule, comments are not funded.
- Authors who publish results from externally funded projects undertake to check whether the publication costs can be covered by third-party funds earmarked for this purpose (e.g. DFG publication cost flat rate or support from the university library) and to exhaust these, if available.
- Please include a sentence (acknowledgement) in the publication in which you mention the funding from the AFI: "We acknowledge support from Alzheimer Forschung Initiative e.V. for Open Access Publishing".

How to apply?

The following documents are to be submitted:

- A short application letter on the university's / institution's paper incl. a short written confirmation that other funding sources have already been exhausted
- Submitted manuscript
- Layman's summary of the article in German (300-400 words)
- Proof of publication costs
- A list of other sponsors if present, including the respective sums
- PhD students submit an endorsement from their supervisor

Please send the completed application for a publication grant by e-mail as one pdf to Pia Ellissen: forschung@alzheimer-forschung.de

You will receive a response no later than 2 weeks after submitting your application. After publication, please send us the final article with the DOI.
